November 8 (at Russo's on the Bay) Parish Gala and Dinner-Dance, Centennial Celebration of the Parish's First Resident Pastor

THANK YOU, BOYS SCOUTS! Ryan Taveras and his band of fellow scouts from Boy Scouts Troop 96 devoted two days last week to cleaning out the basement storage rooms in our rectory. Ryan, you have clearly earned your Eagle Scout rank! May you always find success. We also extend a thank-you to those parishioners who, through their generosity, aided Ryan's Eagle Scout service project. Pictures to follow.

1917-2017: Centennial of Our Founding Pastor

For the 100th anniversary of the appointment of the parish's first resident pastor, Monsignor Joseph R. McLaughlin—the man who built our school, then later the Church and rectory and convent buildings—we are featuring some of the religious architecture at OLM that is his legacy.

As part of the Catholic church-building tradition, Monsignor McLaughlin wanted to instruct people entering Our Lady Queen of Martyrs Church in religious themes. The architects and artists he worked with gave spatial expression to these spiritual decisions.

One of the main areas of interest in the interior of our church is the high pulpit. It is situated on the left side of the church facing the main altar (also known as the “Mary side” of the church because it is here that her altar is also placed).

In the years since this church opened for worship in 1939, the pulpit in Our Lady Queen of Martyrs has been used by many distinguished preachers, including Archbishop Fulton Sheen. Upon ascending the pulpit stairs, priests, bishops, deacons, and lectors deliver the day’s Scripture readings from this particular spot at each Mass. In a large church such as ours, it is from this vantage point that they can be better seen and heard by worshipers.

The pulpit, like all the cabinetwork in the church, is crafted of oak. It is ornamented with four carved statues representing St. Peter, St. Ambrose, St. Jerome, and St. Augustine. Monsignor McLaughlin chose these saints because they were instrumental in spreading Christianity around the world through the power of the spoken and written word. The artist/sculptor is Frederick de Henwood, who also created the Stations of the Cross for our Church and the paintings and statues on the main altar reredos.

More next week . . .

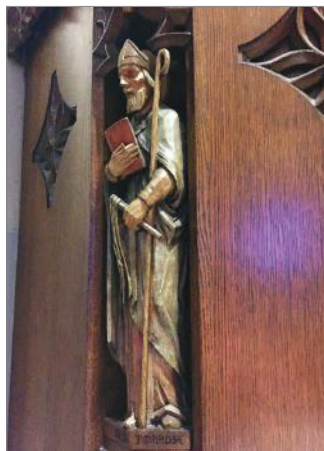

The High Pulpit

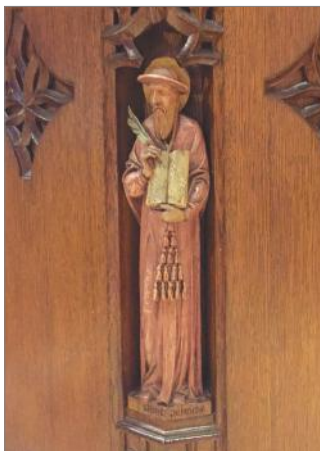

The Inspiring Wood Carved Images on the Pulpit The photos accompanying this article are by Regina Faigbes.

St. Peter, the first Pope and the first of the apostles to preach to the gentiles. He converted many. Jesus said to Peter, “I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven.”

St. Ambrose preached Christianity and turned people away from paganism during the dying years of the Roman Empire (4th century).

St. Jerome devoted his life to translating the Old Testament into Latin. His revision of the Latin version of the New Testament is the basis of almost all English Catholic translations.

St. Augustine, inspired by his mother St. Monica and by the preaching of St. Ambrose, he wrote of his conversion in his Confessions, a spiritual autobiography that is both personal and universal.

At Next Sunday's 11:30 a.m. Mass
Meet Father Robert Mema

He'll share his faith and vocation story with us when he celebrates 11:30 a.m. Sunday Mass on July 30 and leads our Novena to St. John Vianney.

Father Robert H. C. Mema was ordained to the priesthood for the Diocese of Brooklyn/Queens on June 3. His path to priesthood came through RCIA!

After originally planning a career in law (he holds a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from John Jay College of Criminal Justice) and working for two years as a personal banker, he entered Cathedral Seminary House of Formation, Douglaston. His connection to the church started when he was 18 and asked to be a baby's godfather, which got him thinking about his faith. At the 2008 Easter Vigil, he received the sacraments of Holy Communion and Confirmation at Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, then started volunteering as a sacristan, lector and Eucharistic minister.

"What I would eventually come to know was that I wanted to become a priest," he told The Tablet, encouraged and inspired by meeting good priests like Fr. Robert Adamo, then-pastor of Immaculate Heart of Mary, and Msgr. Vito Buonanno, pilgrimage director at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Washington, D.C. As part of his formation, he served summer assignments at nearby St. Kevin Church and Resurrection-Ascension, where he also spent his diaconate year.

Father Mema earned his bachelor of sacred theology, master of theology, and master of divinity degrees at St. Joseph Seminary, Dunwoodie. It's an "amazing opportunity, privilege and honor," he says, to serve God's people as a priest and be both a bridge and instrument of God's mercy.
