Deacon Thomas Jorge, Ordained May 27

At today's 1 p.m. Mass, newly ordained Deacon Thomas Jorge assists Bishop Sanchez in celebrating a Mass of Thanksgiving. Let us come together as a parish in thanks and ask for God's blessings for Tom on his ordination to the Sacred Order of Deacon. Then join us after Mass for a reception in McLaughlin Hall (the school auditorium) for Deacon Tom and his wife Olga.

In Honor of Mary's Month

Regina Caeli (Queen of Heaven)

Queen of Heaven, rejoice, Alleluia.
 For He whom you did merit to bear, Alleluia.
 Has risen, as he said, Alleluia.
 Pray for us to God, Alleluia.
 Rejoice and be glad, O Virgin Mary, Alleluia.
 For the Lord has truly risen, Alleluia.

Let us pray: O God, who gave joy to the world through the resurrection of Thy Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, grant we beseech Thee, that through the intercession of the Virgin Mary, His Mother, we may obtain the joys of everlasting life. Through the same Christ our Lord. Amen.

Five Wounds

by Deacon Greg Kandra

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article, which originally appeared as "A View from the Pew" column, is reprinted today as we welcome a new deacon to our community. The article gives us an understanding of the specific functions a deacon performs and the meaning of this vocation. Please also take a copy of the special "Prayer for the Ordained" near the church doors and pledge to pray for vocations this coming week.

That looks very medieval," someone said to me. He was looking at my lapel, where I was wearing a pin of what's commonly called the Jerusalem Cross—actually, five crosses that symbolically represent the five wounds of Jesus Christ.

I admit it does look like something that might be worn by a knight on a crusade. And maybe, at times, I do feel like I'm crusading for something ... but, for me, the Jerusalem Cross has a deeper, more personal reference.

In 2000, during the Jubilee year, my wife and I made a pilgrimage to the Holy Land and Rome. We visited many sites that are holiest to our faith, walking the same ground and seeing the same landscape as Christ. We walked along the Sea of Galilee. We prayed a rosary in the Garden of Gethsemane. We touched the rock that held the cross. It was a deeply moving, deeply humbling journey, and Siobhain and I came away from it with many unexpected graces. One of them, I believe, is my vocation.

And in that vocation, there is a distinct connection to Christ and His Cross.

In his ministry of the altar, the deacon has a particular relationship to the chalice. He prepares it for the Eucharistic sacrifice, elevates it during the doxology, offers it to the faithful at communion, and purifies it after.

In that way, the deacon shares a unique bond to the blood of the Passion—the blood that poured from the five wounds of Christ on Calvary, the wounds that are immortalized and memorialized in the Jerusalem Cross.

When I wear that cross, it reminds me and others of my connection to Christ's suffering and death. (In fact, I've chosen to wear the emblem on my stole, where it will cross my heart—binding me more deeply and intimately to a ministry of sacrifice, service, and love.)

On Easter Sunday we celebrate a resurrection and our own redemption.... It is the greatest feast of our calendar and a source of unending wonder and joy. It's astonishing to think that what began on Easter has spread around the globe, multiple times, and in every language imaginable.

But let's never forget: It's rooted in the rock that I touched in Jerusalem. It is tethered to a cross that held a battered body, and the blood that stained the ground from five deep wounds. One man's pain has opened to us the gates of Paradise.

When you see the Jerusalem Cross, you are seeing something more than "medieval." You just might see something miraculous.

If you are interested in participating, please consider attending the June meeting to learn more about your possible involvement in the strategic planning process and sharing your ideas, hopes, and dreams for the continued advancement of our beloved Our Lady Queen of Martyrs Catholic Academy.

For more information, contact Mrs. Anne Zuschlag, Academy Principal, or Mark Scapp, Academy Board Chairperson, by calling the Academy office at 718-263-2622 during school hours. Thank you.
